Please note that you, as a Customer, are responsible for the cost and risk of the return. Your refund will be paid via the same payment method you used to make the purchase. The initial delivery cost will not be refunded for partial returns, nor will any costs exceeding the cost of standard delivery, if you have chosen a type of delivery which is more expensive than the standard delivery.

Once you received your order, you should immediately check that the product(s) which you have received correspond to what you ordered and that the products are free of defects. In order to exercise your statutory right of complaint in the event of a defect in the product, incorrect delivery, delay in delivery or transport damage, you have to contact Thule within a reasonable time after you discovered the defect. A complaint made within two (2) months from the time you discovered the defect is always considered to have been made within a reasonable time.

You can also return the product to us by post. If we instruct you to deliver your product(s) to a repair center or Thule partner shop, you can choose to either visit the repair center or partner shop, or request that Thule arranges for transportation of the product(s) to the appointed repair center or partner shop.

11.4 When Thule has received the complained product and found that the complaint is approved, Thule will reimburse you in accordance with current consumer legislation. This means that you can choose to have the defect being remedied or a new item being sent. If this is not possible, a refund may instead be made. If, on the other hand, it is found that the complaint is not approved, we will contact you for further processing. If the product is sent to us by post, please note that you bear the cost of the return when an item is returned to us. However, if your complaint is approved, we will refund the return cost and pay for the re-delivery of the remedied item or the new product, depending on which remedy you have chosen. The assessment of a complaint can take up to 14 calendar days from when we have received the product.
